BREAKING FOUR RECORDS, MCGILL SWIMS ITS WAY TO VICTORY, BUT WINS BY A VERY NARROW MARGIN

Final Score 35-33—Vernot Broke Three Records and Saved the Day For Red and White By Overcoming Lead in Relay—Laidley Also Broke Record For 50 Yards Breast Stroke—Wood and Waldron (Varsity), Captured Two Records—Results of Water Polo To Be Posted at Union To-Day.

(Special from "McGill Daily" Representative.)

Toronto, February 18.—Six records were broken this afternoon in a sensational manner when McGill met Varsity in the Intercollegiate Swimming Meet at Hart House. The laurels of the afternoon's competition go to Vernot (McGill) who, by breaking three of these records, and by coming in first in the relay, overcoming a considerable lead of Wood's for Varsity, saved the day for the Red and White.

McGill's margin was not as safe as might be desired, but the fairly large crowd which turned out to the meet was kept in all the greater suspense on that account. The final score by points was 35 for McGill and 33 for Varsity.

Of the records smashed, four came to McGill. Vernot in the 50 yards speed race, 100 yards speed race and 200 yards dash came easily first, and in each case outstripped any previous effort. Laidley brought home the 50 yards breast record. The two records going to Varsity are 50 yards back, won by Wood of Varsity, and the long distance plunge, in which Waldron of Varsity was away ahead of his nearest competitor.

Fisk (McGill) has just recovered from illness, but in spite of this handicap he captured a third place in the 100 yards dash. It is regrettable that he was not in good form, because he might have been counted upon to better McGill's lead.

The vents in the order in which they were run off, follow:

50 Yards Speed.

Vernot, McGill, 25 2-5 seconds.
Lindsay, Varsity.
Keefer, Varsity.
25 2-5 seconds is the new record, the one broken being 26 1-5.

50 Yards Back.

Wood, Varsity, 35 1-5 seconds.
Munro, McGill.
Uren, Varsity.

35 1-5 seconds breaks the previous record held by Fisk (McGill), who, when in good health has repeatedly broken his own records.

50 Yards Breast.

Laidley, McGill, 35 seconds.
Binns, McGill.
Fitzgerald, Varsity.
This is also a new record.

100 Yards Speed.

Vernot, McGill, 60 4-5 seconds.
Lindsay, Varsity.
Fisk, McGill.

The record broken in this case, was 61 seconds flat.

Long Plunge.

Waldron, Varsity, 63 ft. 8 in.
Bennett, Varsity, 62 ft.

Walters, McGill, 44 ft. 6 in.
The pre-existing record for the long plunge was 58 feet.

200 Yards Speed.

Vernot, McGill, 2 min. 23 2-5 secs.
Wells, Varsity.
Parsons, McGill.
Vernot and Wells both broke the old high mark.

Diving.

Watt, Varsity, 73.6 points.
Wood, Varsity, 73.3 points.
Scott, McGill, 71 points.

Relay.

McGill. Varsity.
Ruker Uren
Bastable Keefer
Fisk Lindsay
Vernot Wood

The teams swam in the order given above, Wood and Vernot coming in last. The finish of the race was particularly sensational, Vernot getting started a little behind Wood, but finishing up ahead. Excitement was very keen during the whole race; the winning of the meet depended on it. The points were awarded as follows:

5 for first place.
3 for second place.
1 for third place.
5 for winning the relay.

Reports of the water-polo game will be sent to Montreal between 4.30 and 5.00 to-morrow afternoon.

POLO RESULTS.

The results of the water polo games at Toronto will be posted at the Union between 4.30 and 5.00 this afternoon, as soon as they come through from Toronto.

MCGILL BEAT SHAMROCKS IN CITY LEAGUE

Won Last Night's Hockey Game by 7-5 Score.

SMALL ATTENDANCE.

McGill Will Play Off With Nationals For Championship on Monday Night.

The McGill sextette showed their worth and power when they defeated the Shamrocks in a hard fought game at the Arena last night. The game was witnessed by a comparatively small crowd, but these were given the best exhibition of the season. The individual play was very good, especially the Shamrock team, who put up a very good brand of individual hockey. The Shamrocks were a little weak in their defence, and the goalie, Lukeman, was called upon repeatedly to make some spectacular stops. He proved somewhat weak in the rebound, and this practically lost the game for the Shamrocks. Stenson, for the Red and White, played an unusually brilliant game in goal. He made some spectacular stops. His work against Varsity will be infinitely harder on Saturday.

Matty Dineen, who again took his place on the defence, was one of the best men on the ice. His checking was particularly effective in stopping the onrushes. He made several beautiful rushes, and played a stellar game throughout.

Behan showed that his old skill had returned. Although he only scored one goal, he was responsible for stopping several onrushes of the Green and White.

John Gallery showed flashes of speed now and then, and made several brilliant rushes. He was not as constant as last week, yet he showed that he could be depended upon in a crisis. Flanagan played a very steady game throughout, and was also responsible for stopping Desbiens of the Shamrocks.

"Boo," at centre, more than surpassed the general expectation. He played a very steady game, and was all-around active. If he shows the same form on Monday night, a win is almost assured for the Red and White.

Desbiens was the star of the Shamrock team, and played an all-round good game. He made several good (Continued on Page 3.)

PROFESSIONAL COACH AGAIN FOR 'VARSITY'?

Rumored Carroll Will Again Manage Team.

STRONG LAST YEAR.

After Varsity's Decision to Use Only Amateurs Rumor Arouses Keen Interest.

Toronto Varsity may once again have a professional coach back with their hockey team, notwithstanding their announcement at the beginning of the season that no one but amateurs would handle their teams. In a final effort to carry off the honors in the O.H.A. League, it is proposed that Carroll be brought back to handle the team.

Last year Carroll did wonders with the Varsity team in bringing them through to the finals for the Allan Cup, but he was deposed this season in favor of Billy Defoe. Throughout the season he has been handling the St. Patrick's professional team and a few amateur teams in Toronto, and it has been proposed to the Athletic Directorate of the University of Toronto that he should be secured to finish out the season with the Varsity team.

Carroll has consented to do anything in his power to help the college team win the title, and it is expected that he will be out with the team in the next few days. The decision of the Varsity club is awaited with interest after their statement of intentions last fall.

ON THE TOPMOST BOUGH.

Flame-throated robin on the topmost bough
Of the leafless oak, what singest thou?

Hark! he telleth how—
"Spring is coming now; Spring is coming now."

Now ruddy are the elm-tops against the blue sky,
The pale larch donnet her jewelry

Spring is coming now, the sun again is gay;
Each day like a last Spring's happy day."

Thus he sang; then from his spray
He saw me listening and flew away.

BOXERS LOST THREE BOUTS AT OTTAWA

Brewer and Edelberg of McGill Won Bouts.

FOULS CLAIMED.

Badger Withdrawn From the Ring by Seconds on Claim of Foul.

McGill's otherwise lucky day was marred by the defeat of her boxing team which met Ottawa yesterday afternoon in the Capital City. Of the five bouts staged, Ottawa won three.

Mirsky, McGill, was beaten on points by Doherty, of the Laurier Athletic Club. Mirsky's seconds claimed fouls three times, but the claim was not acknowledged by the referee. The decision was awarded to Doherty.

Brewer, McGill, defeated Gee. The McGill man was continually on the aggressive, and put up a really remarkable showing. He won on points by a wide margin.

Edelberg, McGill put Dore out of the running in one and a half rounds. He led for that time, and was given a decision on a foul.

Shackell, McGill, was defeated by Nicholl, of the Laurier Athletic Club, who won on points.

The most interesting bout of the evening was that between McConnell and Badger, of McGill. Badger fought gamely, but left the ring on advice of his seconds, who claimed fouls. The referee refused to award Badger a foul, and, cheered by the crowd, he refused to go on. Connell is also reported to have held clinches continually.

Captain Archibald refereed. The management of the Laurier Athletic Club were very considerate of the visiting team, who greatly appreciate their courtesy.

THE COMING ELECTIONS

By the twenty-eighth day of this month all nominations of candidates to the various Presidential offices on the Students' Council must be handed in. Already the ambitions ones are getting ready for their electioneering campaign and have been busy suggesting always with infinite tact, that they really know of no one more suitable for the particular office they seek than themselves.

It is to be hoped that there will be many nominations received for every vacant position, because the election of an officer by acclamation is seldom satisfactory, either to the organization or to the person elected. In the case of disputes arising, the man elected by the majority vote of the students feels that he has the support at least of those who elected him, while an unopposed election leaves the door open all too frequently for recriminations. There are, however, cases when there is obviously only one possible man for the position and in such event his election by acclamation amounts to a general endorsement of his candidature. We can point out several offices which have been satisfactorily filled in this way.

The student body as a whole should exercise their suffrage without exception. There is no excuse for a man being too lazy or too indifferent to the welfare of his college, to register his vote for the candidate whom he considers best fitted to fill the office.

Here, at McGill, we have a large measure of self-government by the students, and it is absolutely essential that our executives should be men of sound common sense and with a real interest in the welfare and reputation of their Alma Mater. The mere office-seeker, who cares little for the good name and the traditions of McGill is readily recognized and should receive the treatment he deserves from the electors.

In these elections the "Daily" intends to do everything in its power to give publicity to the programme of every candidate. Platforms will be published setting forth so much of the candidate's policy as he wishes to make known. Besides this all information will be given concerning the man himself, his business experience, the offices previously held by him and any other information which may be thought desirable.

In this way the "Daily" hopes to ensure adequate publicity for the claims of every candidate for office. In the past the fact that a man "running for office" belonged to one's own faculty has often had the effect of consolidating that faculty's vote in his favor. This is a pernicious habit and if followed to its logical conclusion would mean that the numerical superiority of one faculty over another would play an important part in electing men from such faculty.

The men we want to see in office after the elections are those who are most competent to fill those duties. To this end mere faculty or class-prejudice should be subordinated to a genuine desire to place in office those men who are willing to give their time and their energy to the furtherance of the best interests of McGill.

PLAN WOULD LINK HUDSON AND ROYAL VICTORIA COLLEGE STUDENTS TO HAVE PRIVILEGES OF CIRO'S AT "THE DANSANTS."

The proposal was discussed at a meeting of representatives of various New York State chambers of commerce to substitute for a St. Lawrence canal one which would connect the Great Lakes with the Hudson River at a point just below Albany, New York. It was proposed that federal legislation be enacted to permit private capital to build the canal and that there be government control of navigation and free tolls in return for use of surplus water for power purposes.

The plan provides for the start of the waterway in a new harbor on Lake Erie south of Buffalo, New York, two locks between Lakes Erie and Ontario, and six between Ontario and the Hudson.

THE SERVICE STATION

"Free Air"

So far as one can ascertain, the most scathing criticism the majority of those who attended a certain spectacle playing in the city this week had for it was that it was quite respectable.

The curse of one of these columns, according to Don Marquis, is timeliness. We shall endeavor to get away from it for once.

The Greeks had got out of their hiding places in the horse and opened the gates of Troy to their fellows. "This," quoth Aeneas, as he fought a rearguard action, "is a horse on me."

Alexander the Great was bragging a bit to the boys down in the subcellar. "And all lands were prosperous and contented under my rule," he said. "What about Ireland?" shrieked the latest addition, a newly arrived Black and Tan.

Our representative was on hand to catch Jonah as he landed. "You may say for me," he stated, "that the day of the big battleship has passed. Submarines will be the thing from now on."

Omar was stitching busily when we called. "No, I do not do awnings or mattresses. Tents only. So the wine itself is vanishing, eh? Well, other times, other customs. But remember, they will have something. Don't tell me that it is to be a dish of tea or some French pastry at the Union."

Sir Nigel Loring was speaking. "Sir, though I am but a poor and humble knight, I have often defended the curve of My Lady's eyebrow. However, Sir, since they have taken to shaving them, I swear by the bones of my revered grandsire that I shall do it no more."

P. Vergilius Maro strolled in on us the other evening. "You may deny for me," he said, "that the Aeneid was written for examination purposes. My publishers insisted on at least one book a year. They demanded a 'reasonable literary output.' Crops were poor and wine expensive. What could I do? I grant that if I had added davenport to arma virumque I should have been more popular with the R.V.C., but these young folk should be reasonable. Even if one has to make certain concessions to one's stomach, one must also make a few to one's art."

Joseph's coat had faded somewhat since we had seen him last. Rolling his own from our makings he began to reminisce. "Queer how these things run around in circles, isn't it? I rationed a nation a thousand generations before Lloyd George. I was lucky in one respect, however. Potiphar's wife never published her memoirs."

Michaelangelo had just hung on his classic features an excellent example of a chromatic orb. "You," he said to his opponent, "will only be known to posterity as the man who blackened my eye." "Ca ne fait rien," retorted the other. "You will be remembered as the man who had more butter than he could eat."

It was a quiet little game in the MacBeth flat. Lady MacBeth held a three, four, five and six. Drawing in the hope that she might catch a deuce or a seven, she picked up an ace. "Out, cursed spot," quoth she, and thereby started on its rounds another well-known saying.

Horatius had just left into the gulf. The earth had closed upon him as per schedule. While the crowd stood around, awe-stricken and a bit breathless, his aged mother-in-law rushed up. Flinging herself before the centurion in charge of the policing arrangements, her voice breaking with ill-concealed emotion, she cried, "Oh, my son-in-law, my brave son-in-law. Did it film well?"

Icarus had just heard of the feat of Alcock and Brown. "If father had only thought of aluminum," he mourned.

The grandsire of the archer Hubert had but a moment to linger. "If I must say something for publication," he commanded, "let it be that I have regretted ever since that I did not stay away from Hastings."

Euclid was feeling more or less aggrieved. "The things young people have said about me. I didn't do as badly by them as I might. Newton was responsible for the calculus. And now look at the pickle Einstein has got things into."

Francis Bacon mused. "It is fortunate indeed for me that I lived when I did. Had I ever dreamed that Wells was coming I should not have dared to take all knowledge to be my province."

Lars Persena of Clusium had just sworn by the nine gods. "Old stuff," commented his manager. "Say it with flowers."

To the Editor, "McGill Daily."

Sir,—With reference to Mr. Lockhart's letter in your issue of yesterday, it should be made clear that the plan of helping returned students in need of financial assistance adopted by McGill University is practically identical with the plan proposed by the returned men's associations of the various Universities of Canada, notified at their request by the Great War Veterans' Association, and placed by that Association before the Dominion Government's Committee on Soldiers' Re-establishment. The State was asked to grant or to loan money to returned students who could establish their need to the satisfaction of the authorities of the University in which the applicant for assistance was enrolled. This request was supported by the President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, who contended before the Committee that such assistance would not be "class legislation."

It was felt by the Great War Veterans' Association that to ask for a financial grant to all returned students would not be just. For it is obvious that returned students who ride to lectures in limousines, or who spend their summer idly at fashionable seaside resorts, do not require financial assistance. It was felt, too, that it would be neither a hardship nor a humiliation for students actually in need privately to prove such need. At Harvard University, for example, the Price Greenleaf Fund is used wholly for students who require financial help and who make application for it. It is not asking for charity. It is merely the request of the merit for available funds.

The Great War Veterans' Association, backed up by the University Veterans' Association, realized the justice of such a system. They placed it before the Government a year ago without results, and at the last meeting of the Dominion Command, held in Ottawa on the 6th and 7th inst., it was again unanimously decided to press this claim before the Cabinet. Meantime, it appears that McGill University, impatient with the delay in granting this request, have generously put the plan partly, at least, in operation by refunding increases of fees when the necessity for such refund is established, and by guaranteeing that no returned student shall be forced to abandon his course because of a lack of funds. This plan has the unanimous support of the Great War Veterans' Association; and the writer of yesterday's letter does not in any sense represent the feelings of returned men. For doing what the State has yet failed to do but which there is reason to believe they yet may grant—the University authorities are entitled to gratitude rather than to stupid and impertinent censure.

I am,

Yours very truly,

A RETURNED SOLDIER.

February 18th, 1921.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily."

Dear Sir,—The issues of the "McGill Daily" of the dates of February 17th and February 18th, each contains a letter over the signature of J. R. Lockhart. The appearance of these letters influences me to ask you for space in which to make a formal statement as to the action taken by the Board of Governors of McGill University relative to an appeal made to them by the Returned Men's Association of McGill University for the remission of the increase in fees in the case of all students returned from War.

This appeal was placed in my hands on October 12th, 1920, on which date I left the city on an extended tour on behalf of the McGill Campaign Fund. When I returned to the city the "drive" for funds was on, and it was not until the completion of the drive that the Governors had time to give consideration to the appeal. On the occasion when it was first presented to the Finance Committee of the Board of Governors it was laid over and instruction given that steps be taken to find out the number of returned men attending the University, the number in need of assistance, and other information which would influence the Board of Governors in coming to a conclusion as to whether the remission of the increase in fees was the best way of granting help to the returned soldier student.

As a result of further consideration the Finance Committee decided to recommend to the Board of Governors that the remission of the increase in fees be not allowed, but that a certain sum of money be placed in the hands of the Principal for the purpose of providing assistance to any returned soldier in need of such. The Finance Committee did not wish to see any returned soldier leaving the University because he had not sufficient means to see him through. They felt that the bare remission of the increase in fees would not save for many the privilege of attending the University. They felt that, while some undoubtedly needed assistance, others did not.

They considered that the greatest good to the greatest number would accrue by giving substantial help to those who without such help would have to leave the University, rather than to return to each man an amount, which, no doubt, would be welcome but which would not, I believe, in any case decide the question as to whether a man could continue his studies here or not. The Board of Governors at their next meeting approved of this recommendation of the Finance Committee, and I was asked to administer the fund. I preferred to administer it myself, because I felt that if the comradeship engendered by serving together meant anything at all, it would ensure that no returned soldier would have any difficulty in coming to me.

I believe the Board of Governors came to the right conclusion. The yearly increase of fees in the case of Arts students is $42; in the case of Science students $8; in the case of students in Medicine $53; in Dentistry $75; in Law $73; and in Commerce $92.

When the question of help to returned soldiers in order to enable them to pursue their University education was placed before the Government at Ottawa, it was represented that the facts disclosed that only one man in five had to have assistance or give up his studies at the College. I believe the returned soldiers attending McGill would prefer to see this one helped in a substantial manner rather than to see the five men given amounts which, while useful, would not be all-important.

Mr. Lockhart speaks of "rightful payment" and "just claims," no doubt based on his statement that "the University Governors encouraged students to enlist." I prefer to believe that the students of this University enlisted because they considered it their duty to serve their country in her hour of need, rather than on account of any encouragement from the Board of Governors.

McGill is not a State-supported University. She derives her income from the fees of students and the income from endowments of gifts. The financial condition of the University rendered an appeal to the public necessary. Before an university can rightly appeal to the public she must be in a position to assure that public that there is no waste in the matter of expenditure, and that she has made full use of the opportunities within her own control for adding to her income. Higher education has always been provided at a fraction of its cost, and the charge for it has not kept pace with the increase of cost. The Governors of the University felt that the fees should be raised, and were within their right in raising them to all students.

The Returned Men's Association were within their rights in making an appeal to the Governors for a remission of the increase. The arguments supporting their appeal were well founded and received sympathetic consideration. The Returned Men's Association did not demand the remission of the increase as a matter of right. The Governors considered the appeal and approved of the policy which I have outlined above. I am simply their agent in carrying out that policy.

I do not wish to engage in any controversy with Mr. Lockhart, or any other student, though I cannot refrain from pointing out some glaring inaccuracies in his statements. In his letter in the issue of Feb. 17th he states that "discussion on the matter was refused altogether." In making such a statement he has deviated from the path of truth. His second letter in the issue of Feb. 18th is very personal in tone. He refers to what is the policy of the Governors of this University as being the Principal's policy, and points out what the Principal evidently thinks rather than what the Board of Governors thought.

I dislike to make any reference to the concluding paragraph of his letter in the issue of the 18th, but for the information of all I desire to state most positively that none of "the higher military servants of Canada" were ever "offered" or received any "reward for services rendered." That being the case, the question of their refusing it "on the grounds that others might find greater need for the same" has never arisen. Why Mr. Lockhart should make such a contemptible insinuation is beyond my comprehension.

In conclusion, I wish to assure all concerned that, in formulating the above mentioned policy, the Board of Governors sought only to dispose of the matter in a way that would be best for all. Other universities are acting along similar lines and I hope my old comrades will not hesitate to consult me.

A. W. CURRIE,

Principal.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily."

Dear Sir,—

A letter dated Feb. 17th appeared in the "Daily" of Friday, signed by one J. R. Lockhart, in which the writer lays the blame for the policy of the Board of Governors with regard to a refund of part of the fees to returned men, entirely upon the shoulders of Sir Arthur Currie. Who Mr. Lockhart may be I do not know, but it is evident that his knowledge of the administration of the financial affairs of our University is very limited. He does not realize that the Principal has very little to do with the actual allotment of the funds except to act in an advisory capacity.

From what we have seen of Sir Arthur's work in the past we know that he has the interests of the Returned Men thoroughly at heart and we have no doubt that he has used all his influence with the Board to obtain the proposed refund.

Whatever Mr. Lockhart's views on the subject of such refund may be his veiled attack on "the higher military servant of Canada" is absolutely unwarranted and uncalled for, and reflects no credit on the writer thereof. Certainly it does not express the sentiments of the Returned Men as a class.

Yours truly,

W. S. LIGHTHALL,

COMM. VICTORS OVER ARTS IN HOCKEY MATCH

Large Crowd of Rooters Witnessed Game.

FAST, CLEAN HOCKEY.

Third Successive Win For Commerce in Inter-Faculty League.

Yesterday afternoon Commerce won its third straight victory by defeating the Arts team by the score of 3 to 1. The game was interesting and snappy, and was played on a good sheet of ice. The closeness of the score is a good indication of the relative strength of the teams. Although Commerce clearly showed itself superior towards the end of the game, the issue was in doubt till the final whistle blew.

A commendable spirit of class enthusiasm was shown by the Commerce men by turning out en masse and with vociferous cheers and words of encouragement urging their team to victory. The result achieved is due in no small degree to this wholehearted support accorded the Commerce team by their "thundering" classmates.

The game was fast throughout. At the beginning Arts seemed to have the edge. After a few minutes' play they succeeded in netting the first counter. There was no other score on either side until two minutes before the close of the first period, when Frederick succeeded in working his way through the opposing defence and fooling McDougall with a pretty shot. Score at end of first period, 1 to 1.

The second half opened with a rush. Both sides played hard, but the goalkeepers guarded their nets well and stopped many fine shots. Finally, however, Orr got a pretty pass from Frederick, and slapped the puck in, making it two to one. Commerce then put on extra man on the defence and broke up repeated rushes on the part of the Arts team. Commerce continued to play good hockey, and had the better of it for the rest of the game. A few minutes before the close of the game Orr scored another, making the final score 3 to 1 for Commerce.

The game was very snappy, and was marked by good sportsmanship on both sides. For the winners, every man gave such a good exhibition that it is hard to say which one deserves particular mention. Drummond, in goal, played a cool and steady game, and inspired his team mates with confidence. Frederick and Orr worked together very effectively, and the other players acquitted themselves creditably. Cantley, of the Arts team, was closely checked, and was not given an opportunity to get going. Johnson put up his usual effective game.

Commerce has only two more games to play, one each with Medicine and Science. The game against Medicine takes place this afternoon at two o'clock. If Commerce wins this one, the championship will be theirs. It is therefore expected that a large crowd of rooters will turn out to cheer both teams in the hotly contested match.

The teams lined up as follows:

Commerce	Arts
Drummond.....Goal	McDougall
Montgomery.....Defence	Craik
Lazier.....Defence	McLean
Frederick.....Centre	Cope
Martin.....Forward	Cantley
Orr.....Forward	Johnson
Smith.....Sub	Hall

STAGE SET FOR "LA CAGNOTTE"

Arts '23 Will Present French Play To-Night.

It is expected that the Convocation Hall of the Royal Victoria College will be packed to the doors when the curtain rises this evening on the first act of "La Cagnotte." The total supply of invitation tickets was exhausted at an early hour yesterday morning, and all indications would seem to point to a crowded house.

This last week has been a trying one both for the members of the cast and for those entrusted with the presentation of the play. Difficulties of an apparently insuperable nature in connection with scenic arrangements, accommodation and matters of a like nature have cropped up in their thousands and have had to be overcome as best they might. If nothing further of an untoward nature supervenes, to-night's performance should be well worth all the time and trouble that has been spent on its production.

An unfortunate omission was made in the dramatics personnel published in yesterday's "Daily." The part of Baucant, the village school-master, played by S. E. Read, was omitted from the list of major characters.

BIG ROUND OF ACTIVITIES FOR SKI CLUB

McGill Men Participating in Canadian Championships.

CARNIVAL COMING.

Proficiency Tests and Cross-Country Runs To Be Held Next Friday.

The Ski Club may indeed be said to be participating in a frenzied round of activities this and next week-end. To-day and Sunday the club will have six men competing in the Canadian Ski Championships, out at Cote des Neiges. In the jumping this afternoon Ralph Whittall, Eddy Sherrard, O. Leslie and Alex. Glen will see to it that ye old Red and White sweater does not go to the dogs. Those taking part in the cross-country run on Sunday are Read, M. Owens and Whittall. This run will start from the Montreal Ski Clubhouse on the Mountain at 11 a.m. The course is about eight miles, and is therefore sufficiently long to make an excellent test of the skiers competing in it.

Attention of members is drawn to the fact that there will be a general meeting of the club in the Union at 5 p.m., on Monday, February 21st. A good attendance is requested.

And lastly, but decidedly not least, is the Carnival to be held next Friday and Saturday. These carnivals have been held in previous years and have always been unqualified successes. This one also promises to be equally full of pep. Dartmouth, Middlebury, Williams, and the University of Vermont have all signified their intention of taking part in it, so that it will indeed be a very gay affair.

On Friday (25th inst.) the Ski Proficiency Tests will be held at the M. Ski C. place on the Mountain. At the same time the Ski and Snowshoe cross-country runs will be held. On Saturday, the 26th, the Ski Dash and Intercollegiate Relay Race will take place on the old campus. This will be held in the morning. In the afternoon the jumps will come off and also there will be exhibition jumps by some of the star jumpers of the Montreal Ski Club. The afternoon events will probably be held at the old Park Slide, but this is not certain. Further details will be announced in the "Daily" later.

This Carnival is a big event, and will without doubt prove of great enjoyment to all those witnessing it. We are compelled to commit the usual banality, and say that "a good attendance is hoped for." But, on the whole, it is up to you.

HAWTHORNE, ON A LONG WALK.

October 7th (1841)—Since Saturday last (it being now Thursday) I have been in Boston and Salem. . . This morning shone as bright as if it meant to make up for all the dimness of the past days. Our brook, which in the summer was no longer a running stream, but stood in pools along its pebbly course, is now full from one grassy verge to the other, and hurries along with a murmuring rush. It will continue to swell, I suppose, and in winter and spring it will flood all the broad meadows through which it flows.

I have taken a long walk this forenoon along the Needham road, and across the bridge, thence pursuing a cross-road through the woods parallel with the river, which I crossed again at Dedham. Most of the road lay through a growth of young oaks principally. They still retain their verdure, though, looking closely in among them, one perceives the broken sunshine falling on a few here or bright-hued tufts of shrubbery. In low, marshy spots, on the verge of the meadows or along the river-side, there is a much more marked autumnal change. Whole ranges of bushes are there painted with many variegated hues, not of the brightest tint, but of a sober cheerfulness. I suppose this is owing more to the late rains than to the frost; for a heavy rain changes the foliage somewhat at this season. The first marked frost was seen last Saturday morning. Soon after sunrise it lay, white as snow over all the grass, and on the tops of the fences, and in the yard, on the heap of firewood. On Sunday, I think, there was a fall of snow, which, however, did not lie on the ground a moment.

There is no season when such pleasant and sunny spots may be lighted on, and produce so pleasant an effect on the feelings, as now in October. The sunshine is peculiarly genial, and in sheltered places, as on the side of a bank, or of a barn or house, one becomes acquainted and friendly with the sunshine. It seems to be of a kindly and homely nature. And the green grass, strewn with a few withered leaves, looks the more green and beautiful for them. In summer or spring, Nature is farther from one's sympathies—"American Note-Books." Nathaniel Hawthorne.

THEATRES

PRINCESS.

The bill to be presented at the Princess next week will prove of exceptional interest, for it not only possesses variety but comedy of a novel type in abundance. "On Fifth Avenue" is the most recent of the season's musical revues and with Eddie Borden as guide, or companion or chaperon, accompanied by a band of the wildest shop lifters on the avenue, will personally conduct the tour for three-quarters of an hour. There is stop and the party strolls from place to place for six scenes, each of which calls for an attractive setting and costuming and introduces a varied assortment of songs, dances, dialogue and humor.

Joe Rome and Lou Gaut, eccentric dancers, who vary their dance routine with a little song and a few stories, will offer for the first time here a brand new skit entitled, "When Extremos Meet."

Eddie and Birdie Conrad will be seen and heard in a little musical offering called "Honey Songs," offered in a refined way, elaborately staged with special scenic effects.

"A Vaudeville Seance" which has nothing to do with spiritualism, mind-reading or any psycho power is the title of the vehicle presented by Miss Edna Dreon, an exceedingly stylish and pretty girl, possessor of a rich lyric soprano voice. She renders four exceptionally clever and unique numbers, which delve into the past, present and future.

Dave Roth, the versatile entertainer, will be seen in his specialty "Versatility." Davis and Pelle, novelty gymnasts, offer a very clever display of acrobatic feats, all of which they carry through with apparent ease and grace. Miss Robbie Gordone will make her first appearance here in "Character Studies and Poses from Old Masters and Original Designs." Miss Gordone is giving twelve act poses, in many cases changing from one to the other in a few seconds. She is not only a human statue but a sculptress, her human statues forming one of the most beautiful pictures seen upon a stage.

GAYETY.

Patrons of the Gayety Theatre will see the big surprise of the Columbia wheel next week when "Jack Singer's Show," with Harry Lander and his brother, Willie, hold the boards. Harry Lander is one of the best tramp comedians on the burlesque stage and his brother is running him a close second for the honors. The first big surprise will come in the form of Tarsan, the human ape. If there are any who think this is a moving picture should rid themselves of that idea at once. Tarsan is a real live human-like animal that can box, ride a bicycle, do acrobatic stunts, light and smoke a cigar and many other things. It is said to be the highest paid specialty on the burlesque stage and in addition to that it cost Singer $5,000 to get the animal for his show. The attraction is one of great beauty throughout. The scenery and costumes are the last thing in these equipments and there is a beauty chorus of 20 girls who sing and dance in a most approved fashion. Then there is Sam Wilson, the same old Sam who created such a hit last year with his Jazz songs in Yiddish. He has a brand new programme this season. Ameta Pynes heads the female contingent and she dances just as gracefully as ever. Others in the cast are Henrietta Byron who looks like Lillian Russell; Bobby Moore, Leo F. Daley and Robert C. Miller, Miss Byron, who was a big hit when she was with McIntyre and Heath and in "Listen Lester," wears some wonderful gowns. The show is a hummer throughout.

LOEW'S.

Lovers of "Jazz" and syncopation will find a treat in store for them next week at Loew's when C. Wesley Johnson and his company of colored "jazzers" make their appearance. Mr. Johnson has earned for himself the name of being vaudeville's ragtime king, and the act which he will present is along entirely new and novel lines.

Nell and Elsie Gilbert, two charming young ladies, will offer a delightful combination of smiles, styles and stage; Frazer and Bunce have a tuneful laughing skit called "The Fellow who Looks Like Me;" E. H. Murray and Betty Lane will offer "Hubby's Holiday," an episode of everyday life and Bollinger and Reynolds will present versatile comedy novelties.

One of the strongest pictures ever seen at Loew's will constitute the feature photoplay, "The Right to Love," with Mae Murray and David Powell, supported by an all star cast, deals with the unhappy married life of a lovely young English girl in the glitzy theatrical set. How she finally threw convention to the winds, asserted her "right to love" and gave her love to the man she considered worthy of it, is told in an interesting and gripping fashion.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven in an uproarious comedy "Kids in Kids," and the British-Canadian News Weekly will complete the bill.

AT THE NEW GRAND.

Charles Ray in "Nineteen and Phyllis," will be the attraction at the New Grand Theatre next week, starting Sunday matinee. This is Mr. Ray's third picture since becoming an independent star and producer. The keenest interest is being manifested in this his latest production. "Nineteen and Phyllis" is from an original story by Frederick Stowers, and, according to Mr. Ray's business associates, it is one of the very best vehicles yet provided for the young star. In this most recent production Ray again makes something of a departure from his customary "rube" role, this time appearing in the part of a small town dandy wearing up-to-the-minute mail order raiment. The production is perhaps fittingly described as a comedy of youth, for in it Ray appears as a nineteen-year-old lad, and opposite him in the leading feminine role is demure Clara Norton, who is herself only sixteen years old. The photoplay, according to preview reports, is replete with amusing situations, and one of these, strangely enough, has to do with Mr. Ray's capture of a burglar. On the same programme other pictures will be shown. The New Grand Concert Orchestra, under the direction of David S. Levin, will render the musical numbers.

McGILL BEAT SHAMROCKS IN CITY LEAGUE

Lukeman, the goaler for the Green and White, made several good stops, but he was a little slow in clearing, and three of the scores were made from the rebound.

First Period.

Flanagan secured from the face-off, and "Boo" Anderson shot from a pass from Flanagan. He was a little out in his calculation, however, and the shot went wide. The first period was very fast, and Lukeman had to stop several wicked shots. Flanagan scored the first goal on a pass, and scored the second on a rebound. This period was void of penalties.

Second Period.

This period was somewhat slower than the first, and both teams played better combination. There were, however, two penalties meted out during this period.

Third Period.

The third period commenced with a lead for McGill. The Shamrocks tried hard to even the score, but their several attempts were in vain. They put up a hard fight, and the last period proved to be the fastest of the three. There were several penalties and at one time the Shamrocks were playing four men. McGill, however, did not make use of this opportunity and failed to score. Soon the team was at full strength again, and it was then that McGill scored the last shot which decided the game.

Harry Hyland and Jimmy Gardner handled the game in a most satisfactory manner, and showed no partiality.

The team line-up was as follows:

Shamrocks	McGill
Lukeman.....Goal	Stenson
Muskgrove.....Defence	Cully

APRIL FOOL'S DAY NOW HAS NEW FUNCTION

April First to Mark Appearance of Year Book.

NEW ERA.

Year Book to Take Place of Old Annual—Makes Universal Appeal.

(Being an R.V.C. Opinion.)

April 1st has long been set aside as a day dedicated to All Fools, and as such it has every year been duly honored. This year, however, this time-honored custom is to be banished, for on that day the Junior Year Book, the already famous literary and artistic production of the illustrious class of '22, will make its appearance, and blossom forth with epoch-making ecstasies that will mark out April 1st ever after as a bright and outstanding milestone of University activities in the history of Literature and Art.

In the Junior Year Book the class of '22 are distinguishing themselves as pioneers, for this effort will far eclipse the standard reached in any previous year by its predecessor, the ancient "Annual," now extinct. It marks the opening of a new era, and it is fitting that this should take place on the year which ends the first centenary of the McGill University. The fact that it is to be the centennial number will, of course, add to its interest and value, and make it unique among the publications of all the Junior Years.

One of the chief points of difference between the former "Annual" and the new Junior Year Book is that it does not concern the Junior Year to the exclusion of the other classes, but is of a much more general interest, and is a book which should appeal to all students throughout their college career, so that they should all make a point of subscribing to it every year. Also, there are to be more pictures in this number, and the various clubs and societies are to be given more prominence.

During the past six weeks the Board of Management of the Junior Year Book have been devoting all their spare time with energetic enthusiasm to the supervision and compiling of the famous volume, and all the literary and artistic genius of the student body are hard at work on their various contributions. But in order to ensure the success of their efforts, it is absolutely essential that they should have the moral, and, when the time arrives, the financial support of every student. This is a pioneer number, and its success or failure will decide its continuance or suspension for future Junior Years; so that an appeal is made to every undergraduate to lend his support and encouragement to a publication which will soon justify its existence and satisfy all students of the necessity for its continuance.

INTERMEDIATES WHITWASHED

Poor Exhibition of Playing By Red and White Yesterday.

In a fast and clean game, the McGill Intermediates went down to defeat to the tune of 3-0 yesterday, when they played Queen's at the Arena. The ice was in perfect condition, and seemed to favor the Red and Whites, but lack of practice and inferior skill in handling the stick spelt defeat for them.

For the victors, Battersby, Nelson and Smith played a good, steady and reliable game. For McGill, Timmins and Ross played well. Timmins especially may be said to have played a stellar game. Time and again he was bombarded heavily, and it is much to his credit that he only allowed three goals to pass. It is to be hoped that the Red and White will improve for their game with Queen's on Monday and attempt a come-back.

The teams lined up as follows:

THE TRADES UNION CONGRESS IN ENGLAND: ITS AIMS AND ACTIVITIES.

Before giving the aims and activities of the British Trades Union Congress as it has existed since 1868 or as it exists to-day, it might be well to outline briefly what were the aims and activities of the Trade Union world from its earliest beginning up to the time the first congress was called.

The rise of any permanent combination in the middle ages was very slow, largely because the journeyman always expected to and usually did become a master himself. It was not till the changing conditions of industry reduced to a very remote chance this journeyman's prospects that we find permanent trade societies coming into being.

Wherever permanent combinations were formed, they were put down by act of parliament. For example, in 1425 an act prohibited masons collecting "yearly congregations and confederacies made in their general chapters assembled." It was not till the great bulk of the workers had ceased to be independent producers themselves controlling the processes and owning the materials and the product of their labor and had become life-long wage earners that Trade Unions arose.

Early in the 18th century, as journals in the House of Commons show, there began to be unions of tailors and woolen-workers. Other unions quickly followed such as the wool-combers, stockings, cutlers and cotton spinners. It might be noted that these unions have their origin in some cases almost fifty years before the introduction of the factory system. The object of these unions was to maintain by appealing to Parliament the standard of wages, the standard number of hours in the day and the regulations limiting the number of apprentices.

For some time the Legislature did attend to appeals sent in by these unions, and laws fixing minimum wages and prosecuting employers who took on "illegal men," i.e., men who had not served the legal term of apprenticeship, were enforced. But gradually the governing body seemed to be turning towards a policy of "administrative nihilism." The House of Commons was unaware of any general theory in the actions which followed, but the tendency to the gospel of freedom of contract and natural liberty shows itself before the publication of Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations," in 1776. The effect of these new doctrines of laissez faire was the abolishment of all laws regulating a minimum wage at the beginning of the 19th century, and finally the clauses in the statute relating to apprenticeship were also swept away, and this showed the triumph of the manufacturers.

In 1799 the Legislature passed the "combination laws." This act was directed against all concerted action even if it was considered lawful in the individual. Free bargaining between the capitalist and his workmen became the sole method of fixing wages. The employers used this law to checkmate strikes and ward off demands for better conditions of labor. The effects of these laws were to lower the standard of life, especially in the textile industries and among miners. Francis Place saw its effect, and with the help of Hume, who was a member of the House of Commons, he was able to get through a bill repealing the combination laws in 1825. Immediately upon the repeal of these laws there came a great impetus to Trade Unionism, which, however, resulted in very little towards bettering the workers' conditions, owing to the financial panic and widespread commercial disaster of 1826.

There was a period of trade depression which came to an end in 1829, and at the same time the working-classes seem to have decided that no local union could succeed against a combination of employers. Under the guidance of one John Doherty the National Union of cotton-spinners was formed in 1829. This prepared the way for the more ambitious trades union which soon appeared under the name of "National Association or the Protection of Labour." The express object of this society was to resist reductions and not to strike for advances. The organization quickly grew to include about 150 societies and had a good weekly paper of its own called "The Voice of the People." Other societies, national extent, such as the Builders' Union, were formed. Some of these unions were very aggressive in their policies and we even find them agitating at this early date for an eight hour day, without any reduction in pay.

The culmination in this growth of Trades Unionism is to be seen in the organization of a "Grand National Consolidated Trades Union," of which Robert Owen was the chief recruiter and propagandist. A veritable mania for Trades Unionism set in and the growth of this organization was marvellously rapid. The avowed policy of this huge federation was to inaugurate a general strike of all wage earners so as to force their terms. But it was continually involved in sectional disputes which weakened it and tended to destroy its prestige. Finally after a series of disastrous strikes which exhausted its funds, the Grand National collapsed altogether. This new unionism illustrated by the Grand National and the National Association shows the vast enlargement in the ideas of the workers without any corresponding alteration in their tactics.

In council they are idealists, humanitarians, educationalists, socialists, moralists, but in action they still use the rude weapons of the strike and boycott which are less successful with the new ideas than they hitherto have been. Owen was the central figure at this time. Some of his work, especially in his attempt to secure factory legislation, was very commendable, but there was a Utopian side to his work which did more harm than good. He believed in an industrial democracy first and foremost with co-operative ownership and control of industry. He believed that the worker could and should have the entire product of his industry. In short he advocated a complete revolution against the existing order. The employers met the haughty attitude of the unionists engendered by these doctrines of Owens by presenting the "Document" which compelled a man to renounce connection with a union before he could be hired. With the disagreement occasioned by the non-realization of the impossible hopes instilled by Owens and with the reaction which followed upon this burst of enthusiasm, Trades Unionism quickly declined. Added to this was a depression in trade and some ruinous and unsuccessful strikes which reduced the workers to almost as low a state as they had ever been. During the seeming apathy which followed a new generation of unionists was springing up which was imbuing the political philosophy of the middle class reformers. Cobden and Bright became more and more leaders of working-class opinion. This new development of ideas connected chiefly in substituting, whenever possible, Industrial Diplomacy for the ruler methods of Class War.

A marked revival in Trade Unionism took place shortly after 1840 when the Potters Union, the Cotton Spinners Association and the National Typographical Society were formed. Probably the steady industrial expansion and general good times which set in shortly before the middle of the century account very largely for this revival. Its culmination was the formation in 1845 of the National Association of United Trades for the Protection of Labor. The association was based upon two great facts. First, that the industrial classes do not receive a fair day's wage for a fair day's labor; and, secondly, that for some years past their endeavors to obtain this have, with few exceptions, been unsuccessful. Unlike the Owenite movement of 1833-34, the National Association of United Trades was from the first distinguished by the moderation of its aims and the prudence of its administration. A new spirit existed which recognized the importance of and the beneficial tendency arising from a good understanding between the employer and the employed. The preliminary report made by the London committee of Trade delegates emphasizes the importance of keeping trade matters as separate and distinct from politics as circumstances will justify. Their policy was one of conciliation and arbitration—and in the demand for the local "Board of Trade" are the beginnings of authoritative negotiations between the representatives of capital and labor. Unfortunately, branches of this association drew it into strikes which drained its funds and destroyed its credit. Other national unions were springing up in the various trades whose aims and ideals were much the same. This period is an intermediate stage between the revolutionary voluntarism of 1830-4, and the period of parliamentary action which came later, from 1863-75. It may be regarded either as a belated "General Trades Union" of an improved type or a premature parliamentary committee of the Trade Union world.

THE HOME AND THE FIREPLACE.

The fireplace wants to be all aglow, the wind rising, the night heavy and black above, but light with sifting snow on the earth—a background of inclemency for the illumined room with its pictured walls, tables heaped with books, capacious easy-chairs and their occupants,—it needs, I say, to glow and throw its rays far through the crystal of the broad windows, in order that we may rightly appreciate the relation of the wide-jambied chimney to domestic architecture in our climate. We fell to talking about it; and, as is usual when the conversation is professedly on one subject, we wandered all around it.

I was saying that nothing had been so slow in its progress in the world as domestic architecture. Temples, palaces, bridges, aqueducts, cathedrals, towers of marvellous delicacy and strength, grew to perfection while the common people lived in hovels, and the richest lodged in the most gloomy and contracted quarters. The dwelling-house is a modern institution. It is a curious fact that it has only improved with the social elevation of women. Men were never more brilliant in arms and letters than in the age of Elizabeth, and yet they had no homes.
